

FLORIDA IN GRASP OF THE COLD WAVE

WILL EXTEND TO EXTREME
SOUTHERN END OF STATE

By Far the Coldest Weather Experienced Here Since the Winter of 1895 With Big Freeze.

The coldest weather experienced in this State since the winter of 1895 was on Thursday morning when the Government thermometer registered 19 degrees.

Not only was it cold all of Thursday, but the weather bureau at Washington advised by wire that freezing weather would be experienced as far south as the twenty-sixth parallel and that frost would fall to the extreme southern portion of the mainland, which will probably be the coldest weather ever experienced in Florida, and the loss in the vegetable line will be great.

From the best information that could be secured Thursday it was generally conceded that the orange crop will be considerably damaged by the freeze, which it is predicted, will extend to the southern end of the State today. It is estimated that there are not less than three million boxes of fruit left in the State which may be effected by the present cold. There is also a great number of grapefruit left in the State that will be effected by the cold, but it is generally believed that the trees are in no wise effected, owing to the continued cold weather that has been experienced for the past two weeks.

From Other Sections.

Telephone information received from the Sanford section, which has recently budded out as the celery and lettuce section of Florida, was to the effect that that section has felt the cold to a great extent and the official register at that point was recorded as twenty-four, while in some places it went even below this mark. This will effect the vegetables grown there to some extent, but the younger truck will not be hurt to speak of unless it gets a great deal colder there by the wave predicted for this morning.

From Manatee it was learned that the cold had also hit that country and the thermometer registered as low as twenty-four, but the general opinion was about twenty-five as the true mark.

Leesburg reported a temperature of twenty-two degrees and the message stated that it was generally conceded that the oranges were effected, but the trees were in no wise injured, for the general prevailing cold during the winter has had the tendency to harden them up and make them stand the hard weather.

Covered Goods Safe.

It is a little early to ascertain the damage to the covered lettuce in this section and many of the experienced truckers are divided as to what extent the growers suffered here. Some seem to think that covered lettuce was injured, while others are inclined to believe that the damage, if any, was very slight, and that the lettuce will come out of the cold practically uninjured.

Although it will be a number of days before anything definite is known, it is estimated that the cabbage crop is injured to some extent, and while the greater part of the vegetable will grow out of the effects in a short while, it is safe to state that the crop will be cut short on account of the cold.

From Miami Section.

Telegraphic information received from parties who are interested in the fruit and vegetable business at Miami to J. J. Tinsley in this city Thursday was to the effect that fully 30 per cent of the vegetables were gone as a result of the cold Wednesday night. The message stated that the thermometer registered at that time 33 degrees and they expected a lower temperature Thursday night.

"There is no doubt," stated Mr. Tinsley, "that the oranges and grapefruit left on the trees are a total loss." He has sent out inquiries in all sections which show that the fruit was damaged.

One of the leading truckers here Thursday stated that even the covered lettuce was injured, but it would only be that which was headed and ready for market, but all of the young stuff had hardened up by the continued cold weather, and the fact that no new growth had been noticeable in the past ten days was sufficient proof that the young stuff would escape injury.

Late in the evening considerable uneasiness was felt by some of the large cabbage growers throughout this section as to how the crop would be effected with the cold of last night.

All during yesterday the plumbers of the city were overtaken in shutting off the water supply where the pipes had burst, and it was noticeable that more of this occurred in the middle of the day than at any other time.

NEGRO MINISTER IN TROUBLE.

His Congregation Objects to His Behavior and Had Him Arrested.

Rev. Wm. Murray, who lives in the Micanopy section but has charge of the Atredondo flock, is up against it, for a number of his congregation were here Tuesday and had a warrant issued for his arrest.

Sheriff Ramsey returned from Micanopy Thursday with the man in custody and he will be given a preliminary hearing before Judge Mason. Some of the members, it is alleged, are displeased with the parson's actions and want him put out of the church, and it is said that when the same was mentioned to Murray he became angry and wanted to "wallop" all who were in sight. He was arrested upon a charge of disturbing the peace.

Waived Examination.

Henry Patterson, the negro charged with killing Deputy Leo Tyler at Williston, waived a preliminary hearing and was bound over to the circuit court without bail, and the witnesses were released under recognizance bonds.

There are not a few people who entertain grave doubts as to Patterson's guilt, and it is hoped the truth will come out at the trial.—Bronson Times-Democrat.

The Fate of the Onida.

One of the most extraordinary catastrophes that have befallen vessels of the United States destroyed the sloop of war Onida in 1899. She was bound homeward, with a jolly ship's company, eager to see wives and sweethearts and native land once more, when not far out of port she was struck by the British steamer Bombay coming in. The stem of the Bombay cut off the stern of the Onida. The ship was sinking rapidly, and guns of distress were immediately fired, but the Bombay steamed on her way and left the vessel to her doom. She went down, and all but one or two of her crew were drowned. The captain of the Bombay gave no other reason for his conduct than that he had Lady Eyre, the wife of a distinguished British satrap, on board and did not wish to disturb her nerves with scenes of shipwreck. He was mobbed when he reached Yokohama, dismissed from the service, socially tabooed from that time on and died in disgrace a year or two later.

Where Hypnotism Failed.

When Daysey Mayme Appleton returned recently from a party where the influence of several minds over one had been the evening's entertainment and told her mother how six girls, with their minds bent on one thought, had made a man stand on his head, another man at their silent command had tried on a woman's hat and another man had tried to eat water with a fork, it put a suggestion into Mrs. Lyssander John Appleton's brain. That evening when Lyssander John came home his wife and four daughters sat in a circle with their hands covering their faces and their heads bowed. To all his inquiries they said nothing, and at last, fearing they had gone mad, he sent for the doctor. "We concentrated our minds on the thought that Lyssander John must give us $5 each, and instead of that we have a doctor bill to pay," sobbed Mrs. Appleton, "and they said it would be particularly easy to work if (the man's mind was a blank)."—Athens Globe.

To Get His Money's Worth.

In a village near Edinburgh there lived an old baker and his son. Their trade was in a flourishing condition, but unfortunately in the midst of their prosperity the old man, who had once been a great drinker, turned insane. The son, who was renowned for his love of money, was forced to put him in a lunatic asylum and, according to the terms of the establishment, to pay a fee for three months in advance, amounting to £20. The old man was scarcely in a fortnight, however, when he died. The son, thinking to raise an action against the establishment for the recovery of the fee, he formed it, named money, inquired of an old lawyer who was a bit of a wag whether he thought it would be prudent to try to recover the money or not. The chip of the law, putting on a grave face, replied confidently, "Dry in the rest of the time you'll find out."
